Acknowledgments

Contributions to this special number of EJC, were selected through a process of double blind peer review on the basis of a larger corpus of contributions received in response to an open Call for Papers circulated internationally in December 2007.

As reviewers, semioticians and scholars in other disciplines with a keen interest in computer games and digital culture from Europe and elsewhere were recruited, taking into account the thematic orientation of this special number, and the varied disciplinary backgrounds of authors:

Kjell Lars Berge (University of Oslo)
Robert Biddle (Carleton University, Ottawa)
Gordon Calleja (IT University Copenhagen)
Giovanna Cosenza (University of Bologna)
Riccardo Fusaroli (University of Bologna)
Hugh Hancock (Strange Company, Edinburgh)
Charlene Jennett (University College London)
Olli Leino (IT University Copenhagen)
Eva Maagero (Vestfold University College, Tonsberg)
Antonella Mascio (University of Bologna)
Alvise Mattezzi (IUAV, Venice)
Isabella Pezzini (La Sapienza, Rome)
Cristiano Poian (University of Udine)
Daniel Reynolds (University of California Santa Barbara)
Niklas Schrape (Film and Television Academy Conrad Wolf, Potsdam-Babelsberg)
Lucio Spaziante (University of Bologna)
Bianca Terracciano (La Sapienza, Rome)
Karen Wenz (University of Maastricht)

The book’s graphical layout has been realized by Dario Mangano and Ilaria Ventura (University of Palermo).

We would like to thank everyone involved for their respective contributions, without which this thematic issue would not have been possible.

Dario Compagno (University of Siena) and Patrick Coppock (University of Modena and Reggio Emilia)
